Physical inactivity is the fourth greatest cause of disease, disability and premature mortality in the UK, costing the health service as much as £1.2bn a year. The sector needs to create spaces that inspire participation and where everyone can enjoy being active. This year's paf will focus on new solutions for an active nation.

Promotion of fitness and wellbeing as a vital lifestyle choice is essential to counter the current statistics of around 20 million adults in the UK being insufficiently active. Creating a variety of facilities to attract every part of society & age demographic, adventure based high adrenaline activities, child centered sports are needed to get the inactive active.

In 2017 State of UK Fitness Industry Report there are promising signs of an upward turn in the public's participation in fitness, resulting in 5.1% total industry membership increase to 9.7 million; marked increase in the number of new fitness facilities being opened in the UK (272 up from 224 in 2016); and a market value estimated at £4.7 billion, up 6.3%.
